University of Cambridge English Legal Methods Summer School 2013

Dear Colleague

I am pleased to enclose information regarding the 2013 University of Cambridge English Legal Methods Summer School, which will take place in Cambridge, UK from 8 July to 2 August 2013.

This international course, which will celebrate its 65th anniversary in 2013, presents the central aspects of English law for lawyers and law students from countries whose legal systems are not based on English Common Law. The course attracts participants from across the world.

Much of the emphasis is placed on the general structure of the law and legal methods, although detailed study of substantive law is not neglected. Teaching will be provided by leading academics from the University of Cambridge's Faculty of Law and visiting speakers. Participants will have the opportunity to stay at Selwyn College, and will have access to the world-renowned Squire Law Library.

I would be grateful if you would share the enclosed information or distribute an email to all relevant and interested parties. Further details along with a copy of the brochure, application form and the syllabus can be found at www.ice.cam.ac.uk/elm.

The closing date for applications is 1 May 2013 and places are offered on a first-come, first-served basis, so don't delay and apply today for your place on the course. To speed the process you may also book online.

If you have any queries, please contact us on cpd@ice.cam.ac.uk.

Yours sincerely

Valentina Steel

The University of Cambridge is one of the oldest universities in the world, with over 800 years of history. Its reputation for academic achievement is world-renowned.

In 1948 the University inaugurated the English Legal Methods Summer School. Each year the course attracts participants from countries and cultures across the world, and in 2013 it will be celebrating its 65th anniversary.

The course presents the central aspects of English law. Much of the emphasis is on the general structure of the law and legal methods, although detailed study of substantive law is also covered.

Taught by leading Cambridge scholars, the course offers a rare opportunity to experience Cambridge life first-hand; to spend your summer as a student in one of the most famous university cities in the world.

Who should apply?

The course is designed for lawyers and law students who have no prior knowledge of the English legal system. Owing to the nature of the academic content taught, applications from countries whose legal systems are based on English Common Law will not be accepted. Law students must have completed a minimum of 1 year of their legal studies at undergraduate level.

What will I be studying?

Lectures will take place at the University of Cambridge Faculty of Law, in the magnificent Lord Foster-designed building situated on the Sidgwick Site. The lecture programme will include:

- the development and structure of English Law
- the sources of English Law
- the courts and legal profession
- private law (property, obligations, trusts etc.)
- public law (constitutional and administrative law)
- criminal law
- civil and criminal procedure.

Seminars: you will be allocated two seminar subjects from your initial choice of three, and in order of preference. We will aim to include:

- civil procedure
- company law
- constitutional law and administrative law
- criminal law
- law of contract
- law of torts
- law of trusts
- private international law.

You will receive a personal timetable for your seminars.

The programme

Registration will be from 15.00 hours on Monday 8 July 2013 at Selwyn College, Cambridge.

The course starts fully on Tuesday 9 July with the inaugural lecture, and continues with a series of lectures each morning and seminars in the afternoons, from Monday to Friday each week, and including lectures on Saturday mornings. You will attend two seminars of your choice, with a total of 6 hours' tuition in each seminar subject.

A typical day: Monday to Friday

- 08.00–08.45: Breakfast in College (for residents only)
- 09.15–12.45: Three plenary lectures
- 14.00–17.30: One or two seminars each lasting 1 hour / private study time / free time
- 18.30–19.30: Dinner in College (for residents only)
- 20.30–21.30: Optional evening lectures of general interest / concert or social event / free time

Entry and attendance requirements

All teaching will be in English, so you must feel confident that you are able to follow a lecture and seminar and take part in discussions in English. A high level of fluency is important, although no specific English language qualification is required in order to apply. The course is taught at undergraduate level.

A certificate of attendance will be given to those who attend all lectures and seminars. 100% attendance is required, except in exceptional circumstances, in which case you must refer to the Academic Programme Manager.
